Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

Outside the United States is Hitler. Inside the United States is Harry Bridges. Both are deadly enemies of our democracy. Both are aliens not only to our peace, but to our way of living. Both are autocratic. There may be a difference in their ideologies, but there is little, if any in their practical goals. These reflections are prompted by a news dispatch from Los Angeles, reading:

Once an ardent supporter of President Roosevelt and all his policies, the CIO International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union turned its back on the executive at its annual convention today.

Only one voice, that of the introducer of a resolution pledging cooperation with and indorsing the defense policies of the President rose in his defense.

The resolution was tabled on motion of Harry Bridges, ILWU president and candidate for re-election.

Administration officials in Washington permitted this czar of waterfront labor, a week's vacation from the hearing in which he is being tried on charges of having belonged to an organization bent upon the overthrow of our government. This was to enable him to be triumphantly re-elected as the West Coast CIO mogul, and as it turns out, tacitly to declare that the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union will no longer support the administration which gave them the power they are now exercising. This is a double treachery, first to the United States in its hour of peril, and second to the administration which has negligently, and, as we believe, foolishly, fostered and protected seditious elements in this country.

The wind has been sown, as has been said before, during the last eight years, and now in 1941, it seems that we shall reap the whirlwind. For, already throughout the radical element in labor organizations the word has gone forth that in event of Harry Bridges deportation we shall have a general strike of the CIO unions in the United States. This will confront the administration with a tragic dilemna, should the charges against Bridges be proved. By some legal ledgermain he can be permitted to continue in this country and thereby avoid the issue of a general strike. Or, the risk of a strike may be faced with all that it may mean in the use of troops and resulting civil war, at a moment in history when the safety of our nation is at stake.

What France did in the way of compromise with its radical elements, apparently we have done better. What saves us from the debacle of France is, after all, distance from the aggressor and the element of time. We have time, even if England were to fall, to gird ourselves for the vital struggle with a brute force, armed and intelligent beyond any such force ever exerted in the world before. If a general strike develops as now threatens, we still shall have time to make whatever painful adjustments are necessary. We shall have to give treason new definitions if necessary, and to enforce new laws, exactly as the law is now being enforced against Harry Bridges.

But we may not have time to prevent the fall of Great Britain. A general strike would tie up our industries, in all liklihood, beyond the day that our aid could be effective. All those now placed in intelligent leadership, military, or political agree that, unless we can aid Britain adequately, we shall be engaged within a year, two years or a few years in a life and death struggle with dictators, Asiatic and European. In that event the cost in human lives and in "sweat, tears and blood," will be infinitely higher than it would have been had we gotten help to Great Britain in time.

Mine Operators Debating Their Action On Proposed Enforcing of 40-Hr. Week

COURT ACTION SEEN AGAINST RULING OF ADMINISTRATOR OF FAIR LABOR STANDARD ACT

Leading gold mine operators of this district are debating what action they will take in regard to the ruling announced by Wesley O. Ash, regional wages and hours administrator, that employees of the mines are subject to the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

It appears the administrator is preparing to launch enforcement activities and the deadline has been set as May 1st.

The regional wages and hours administrator said that if any of the mine operators do not agree with the ruling they have the privilege of contesting the matter in the courts.

It is understood some of the mining operators in this county are making preparations to abide by the ruling of the administrator until the courts decide whether the gold mines in this state are subject to the act.

Wesley O. Ash, regional wages and hours administrator announced San Francisco "it is the position of the government gold mines selling their gold to the United States Mint within the state of California are subject to the Fair Labor Standards Act."

The regional administrator said he made this statement upon the authority of General Phillip B. Fleming, national wages and hours administrator

Mines Are Subject

This means, Ash added, that employes of gold mining companies are subject to the provisions of the act, including the forty hour week and wages and time and one half for over time.

In a prepared statement Ash said:

"We do not consider the decision in the case of the National Labor Relations Board against the Idaho-Maryland Mine in the circuit court of appeal for the 9th circuit as controlling with respect to the Fair Labor Standards Act.

"It is the position of General Fleming that gold mines within California selling their gold to the United States mint within California are subject to the act.

Enforcement Is Policy

"Beyond that our policy with respect to enforcement of the act against the mines is the same as our policy with respect to the enforcement of the act against any other employer."

In the NLRB case before the circuit court, the judiciary ruled that gold mines engaged in selling their gold to the United States Mint within this state were not subject to the provisions of the Wagner Act.

Ash pointed out that the case has not proceeded beyond the circuit court and it remains the opinion of the wages and hours administration that the decision is not controlling in respect to the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Companies May Contest

The regional administrator said the gold mine operators have the privilege of contesting the ruling of the wages and hours administration in the courts if they do not agree with it, and until a decision to the contrary should be handed down the administration will enforce the act.

Ash would not comment on the possibility of the payment of retroactive overtime wages to any employes who might have worked in excess of the maximum weekly hours set up in the act, ranging from forty four down to forty since the law became effective.

He stated:

"We will take up that matter when we come to it."

MUSHROOMS ARE CAUSE OF CHILD'S DEATH

Coroner A. M. Holmes has closed his investigation into the death of Bavagita, 4 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Walker of North San Juan.

Coroner Holmes said he has received a report from a Sacramento pathologist, to whom the stomach contents of the deceased child was sent, and the report revealed death was due to mushroom poisoning.

Bavagita died three days after the Walker family had consumed mushrooms at a general meal. Five other children became ill but are now all out of danger. Pecularily the parents suffered no ill effects from the mushrooms, which were gathered in the vicinity of the Walker home.

The funeral services for Bavagita were held last Friday afternoon under the direction of the Holmes Funeral Home.

Ranger H. I. Snider Nearing Medical Attention After Ten Days In Lonely Hut With Bad Ski Accident Hurt

INJURED TAHOE RANGER WILL BE TAKEN TO RENO HOSPITAL BY ERNEST BAXTER UPON ARRIVAL IN GEORGETOWN

After almost two weeks of confinement in a lonely mountain cabin in French Meadaws with a leg injury, which may include a broken leg, it appeared today Ranger H. I. Snider was near the point of receiving medical attention.

A rescue crew, led by Rangers Frank McCaslin of the El Dorado Forest and Charles Beardsley of the Tahoe National Forest, reached Snider early yesterday from the Georgetown end and immediately began the trip out with the injured man.

It is believed the party will reach Georgetown tonight and the injured ranger will be taken to a Reno hospital for treatment by Government Physician S. A. Morrison, who is also Snider's personal doctor.

The rescue crew was due to have remained at Goggin's Mine last night and set out again early this morning with Snider, who was on a sled drawn by tractor.

At Georgetown tonight, Assistant Supervisor Ernest L. Baxter will meet the party with an automobile and drive Snider to Reno.

A Tahoe National Forest rescue party early yesterday made preparations to go in after Snider from the Soda Springs end after the Georgetown crew was unreported for more than 24 hours.

The expedition was called off, however, when Mrs. Ellwood Stone, who was handling the short wave radio, received a message at 7 a. m. yesterday from James Wheeler at the French Meadows cabin that Snider was on his way out. Mrs. Stone relayed the message to Soda Springs and stopped the Tahoe National Forest men who were preparing to go in from that end.

Wheeler, who had been caring for Snider since three days after the accident, when a party of Tahoe National Forest men reached him but were unable to bring him out because of the soft snow, caught up with the Georgetown rescue crew after radioing the news to Mrs. Stone.

In the meantime, Pilot Ed. Sandin of this city, who had previously on two accasions dropped supplies to the two marooned rangers, made another flight into French Meadows with intentions to drop gasoline for the snowmobile which was to have been used to reach Snider from Soda Springs. When he saw the two men had left he flew to Soda Springs.

In order to talk with Baxter, Stone and Ranger John R. Hodgson, Sandin landed his airplane on Lake Van Norden. When it come time to take off a 250 foot runway was beaten in the snow but Sandin couldn't get enough traction with his plane to leave the ground.

It was necessary to leave the airplane on the lake overnight and early this morning the snow on Van Norden was sufficiently hard to enable Sandin to take off with ease.

During the preparing of the runways for Sandin Stone fell into the lake where one of the tributaries enter. So all considered the day was a success and everyone had a lot of fun.

Getting back to Snider, the ranger was injured two weeks ago tomorrow while on a snow survey with Assistant Supervisor Baxter and Quentin Queen. Baxter and Queen managed to carry Snider to the isolated shelter hut in French Meadows and returned to civilization for aid.

A rescue crew immediately set out and after battling blizzards for two days reached Snider with food supplies. Because of the deep soft snow efforts to bring Snider out on a toboggan were unsuccessful and Wheeler was left with the injured man to care for him.

In the meantime Supervisor Guerdon Ellis asked the El Dorado National Forest officials to assist in the rescue plans and a crew was organized to go in from the Georgetown end by tractor.

It is believed the tractor got within two miles of the cabin in which Snider was confined and it was necessary to walk the remainder of the way.

The marooning of Snider and the attempts to bring him out attracted nationwide interest. Metropolitan newspapers as well as the radios "played up" the story almost daily.

Snider got on the radios once be-

ELEMENTARY ATTENDANCE AGAIN NORMAL

Teachers counted noses at the Elementary School today and breathed a sigh of satisfaction.

Attendance was normal.

Twice during the past month the school officials were forced to close classes because of epidemics of measles, colds, mumps and other children's diseases.

The last time school was closed was the week before the annual Easter vacation so the pupils had a two weeks consecutive holiday.

The back to normalcy of the health of Nevada City's children was not only a source of satisfaction to the teachers but the parents as well.

Classes also resumed at the high school, after a week's Easter vacation.

Let Students Complete Work

The world will need engineers, physicians, educators and statesmen when the war is over, and it is of the utmost importance that American college men and women be allowed to finish their studies during the present crisis.

So says Dr. Gordon S. Watkins, dean of the College of Letters and Science on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California. He points out that while there is no definite national policy at the present time, we should profit from the example of nations already at war.

"Perhaps one of the most heroic chapters in current history is being written in China where colleges and universities with their large student bodies have migrated thousands of miles into the interior as a consequence of Japanese invasion," he said.

"The government of China is insisting that young men and women continue their college education. A similar policy has been formulated in Japan and Germany. Britain, perhaps, is suffering most from the interruption of the education of her youth, but even she is urging students of medicine and the physical and life sciences to complete their training.

"In the new world that must necessarily emerge from the present conflict, a world burdened with unprecedented problems of economic, political and social reconstruction, the need for trained men and women will be great. Extraordinary intelligence, cultivated by higher education, will be required to guide a disorganized world into channels of constructive readjustment."

The Public Attitude Clarifies

The Gallup poll, in one of its most recent probings of the public attitude, asked one question that brought forth a particularly interesting response. The reaction of the American people to this query really gives occasion for more than casual thought.

Here is the question raised by the noted pulse-taking group:

"Do you think industrial (business) leaders are helping the national defense production as much as they should?"

Of those who had an opinion, 62 per cent felt that industrial leaders were cooperating to the top of their ability, and only 38 per cent were of the opposite view. Meanwhile, answering queries concerning other aspects of defense, the public was considrably less pleased with the way that certain others were doing their part of the job.

It is particularly stimulating to realize that industry has won this public acceptance without fanfare. It has been plugging away every possible moment of each day turning out articles to make this country safe, while its critics have had plenty of free time for carping. Yet the American people have wisely chosen to recognize and approve deeds, not words.

Since earlier polls, during the depression years, showed no such confidence in industry, this situation has its deep meaning for those who will ponder it. Our history shows us that confidence in industry, a belief in its ability to accomplish the aims set for it, is the prerequisite for America's moving ahead. In the production of peacetime goods, this was the case; industry brought the nation the highest standard of living any society anywhere has ever known during generations when it received the benison of public good will. It is reasonable to expect that, with the same measure of confidence, it can effectively produce the national security that is our most pressing need.

It would seem to be the case that an emergency has served to bring about the clearest public vision. The destructive critics who had their fun at the expense of the "builders and doers" in former periods do not gain the public ear in times of stress. It is not, of course, pleasant to reflect that it takes a world crisis to bring about this state of affairs. But the condition itself, from every vantage point of national welfare, is devoutely to be desired!—Contributed.

DEFENSE TAXES TO COME

It takes money in huge amounts to prosecute a war. England, in the throes of mortal conflict, has just been forced to slap onto her war-burdened people a 50 per cent income tax!

It takes money, as well, to prosecute a defense program, and Amercians already are paying heavy taxes for the purpose. But the cost of the defense program in coming months is scheduled to go up—not down. Just how will that affect California?

Surveying the situation, the California Taxpayers Association turns up some enlightening figures:

California residents paid 25 per cent more in taxes last year than the national per capita average! Our per capita tax eight years ago was $85.06; today it is $137.74. And the national average is only $109. Among all states, California tops the tax list!—Contributed.

Downieville Has 81 Inches Of Rain

The recent rain storm brought seven inches of rain to Downieville, states District Ranger Frank B. Delaney. This brings the season total to 81 inches, which nearly equals the total 1940 rainfall. Although this may not be the "dampest" spot in California the people of Downieville will be glad to see the sunshine again according to Delaney.

CALIF. FARMERS HIT BY EUROPE'S WAR EMBARGOES

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

Half way around the world, the economic shock of the Battle of Britain has been felt by California agriculture, particularly in loss of markets for canned, dried and processed food products. Britain began the war with plenty of ships, and she preferred to bring in food supplies the long way 'round from her far-flung empire and thus conserve her limited dollar credits in this country for expenditure on planes, tanks and guns.

The German market was largely lost, even before the war was begun —a severe shock to the California prune industry and to many other branches of agriculture. Hitler, striving for self-sufficiency, and seeking to keep German capital in Germany, cut off imports from California and other sections of the United States long before the British blockade finished the job. Italy, France and Spain—Belgium, Holland and Finland—also have been lost, at least for the time being, as potential markets for California produce.

History has a strange custom of repeating itself, however, and the slogan of 1918 "Food Will Win the War," may soon become the slogan of 1941. Attacks of Axis submarines and bombers upon English merchant ships have been so dangerously effective in reducing commercial tonnage that the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicted last week that Britain will be obliged to shorten her trade routes for civilian supplies, and obtain immense quantities of such suppplies by the comparatively short sea haul from the U. S. A. and Canada. And enactment of the lend-lease bill has loosened the restrictions on British credit so that the purchase of food will not endanger England's contracts for war material.

Although it is not yet generally recognized, the lease-lend act not only makes the United States the arsenal for Great Britain, but also her granary and food mart. Britain, at the moment, needs food almost as badly as she needs weapons and intends to draw on this country heavily for livestock products, such as canned pork, dried eggs, evaporated milk, lard and cheese, which she formerly got from Poland, Denmark and Holland. Officials of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, however, do not expect Britain to ask for American wheat and corn—crops in which this country has tremendous surpluses. England apparently gets all of these crops it needs from the dominions. Indirectly, though, British purchases of livestock products will probably help the price of corn.

Reports from Washington indicate that the lend-lease act will bring about the biggest farm purchase plan since the last World War, with considerable benefit to American agriculture. But there will be no hectic campaign to plant millions of additional acres and boost production, as there was back in 1917 and 1918. Agriculture hasn't yet recovered from that debacle of more than two decades ago—and conditions today are vastly different.

Any farmer who sees prosperity just around the corner, as a result of proposed shipments to Britain—and who might feel tempted to step up his production—should take another look. This country has a carry-over of 700,000,000 bushels of corn, or more than four times normal; we have a wheat carry-over of 400,000,000 bushels; we have 11,000,000 bales of surplus cotton, 372,000,000 pounds of surplus tobacco, 2,735,000 pounds of surplus butter, 3,609,000 dozen surplus eggs, 37,000,000 pounds of surplus vegetables and 25,000,000 pounds of surplus fruit.

The farmer, however, has learned to be grateful for small favors. Britain's buying program may take up some of the slack.

SAVANT SAYS RESURGENCE OF RELIGION NEEDED

LOS ANGELES, April 14.—A great resurgence of religion is needed if the world is to find a true peace.

This is the belief of Dr. Hugh Miller, professor of philosophy on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California, who has made an extensive study of the influence which religion has exerted on the history of western civilization.

"The last war was really on the first clash of a great battle." Dr. Miller declares. "From now on, whether we designate our condition as peace or war, we shall have no real peace until we have a resurgence of religion and all that it stands for."

Even the democracies have evaded the issues of Christianity, for we have accepted the moral standards of the Christian faith without accepting the fact of religious faith itself, Dr. Miller says.

"Christian morality is not a thing which stands alone without the back ground of faith," the philosopher points out. "As may be seen in the totalitarian nations, our accepted standards of Chrtisian ethics vanish rapidly enough when a new object of devotion replaces God."

However the present war may end militarily, Dr. Miller believes the real victory must be a spiritual one. "No matter what the outcome, the issue between idolatry and true religion will not be decided on the battlefield but in our hearts, and in the hearts of our children," he declares.

Dr. Miller discusses these issues in his forthcoming book, "Christian Truth in History," to be released soon by Harper & Brothers.

EASTER SERVICES ATTRACT THRONGS TO CITY CHURCHES

Throngs attended Easter services in Nevada City churches yesterday.

Easter was greeted with perfect weather and many were present at the sunrise services at the airport.

Later services in the various churches were well attended. At the Methodist Church, Rev. David Ralston said every seat was taken. It was the largest crowd in recent years at local church.

Last night's Methodist services were also well attended. A beautiful cantata was presented by the Methodist Church choir, directed by Mrs. John Hathaway.

The perfect weather was responsible for much activity on the business streets during the day and last evening. Both male and female alike were wont to display their new Easter outfits.

MARGARET PAULINE STEVENS BECOMES BRIDE OF RAY STEGER

Before close friends and relatives, Miss Margaret Pauline Stevens, one of Nevada City's most attractive and popular young women, became the bride of Raymond C. Steger.

The ceremony was performed by City Judge Miles Coughlin at the Stevens home on Gethsemane Street.

The bride was attended by Miss Virginia Carney as bridesmaid. She was given in marriage by her father, Charles Stevens. Carl G. Steger acted as the best man for his brother. The Wedding March was played by the bride's mother as the bridal procession entered the living room for the ceremony. The room was decorated with green leaves and blossoms and Easter lilies. The flowers formed a bower in front of which the couple stood to take their marriage vows.

For the wedding the bride was attired in a dress of orchid chiffon and wore a white hat with lavender veil. She wore a corsage of white gardenias.

The couple have rented a house owned by Charles Genasci on Sacramento Street and following their honeymoon will make their home there.

The wedding was followed by a reception at the Stevens home.

A MESSAGE FROM THE ELECTRICAL INDUSTRY

How to make sure the house you buy or build has ADEQUATE WIRING

Every year thousands of new homes have wiring systems installed that are just short of being first-class jobs. It seems a pity that this occurs because small additional cost would assure the home builder getting a wiring job that would not bring disappointments in years to come.

Think of the many electrical appliances used in the modern home. Each year two or three additional new appliances are acquired and put into use. Then "traffic jams" occur at convenience outlets, circuits become overloaded and voltage drops so that lamps and appliances do not operate to full efficiency.

Plan each room in your house for adequate wiring. Discuss wiring completely with your architect and contractor. Talk with your electrical contractor or this company. Then plan your home wiring to meet the Red Seal Standard of Certified Adequate Wiring.

The Red Seal Plan is a set of specifications set up by wiring experts of the electrical industry. Remember Adequate Wiring will pay for itself many times over.

A house is "underwired" IF—

Lights blink or go dim when a heavy duty appliance is turned on.

Toasters or other heating appliances are slow coming up to proper temperature.

Lamps or clocks or radios must be disconnected in order to use vacuum cleaner or movie projector.

A traffic jam occurs at certain outlets and a wobbly three or four way plug must be used.

Your furniture arrangement is restricted by the location of your plugs for lamps, clocks and radios.
